Who are we?

South West Natural Resource Management (NRM) Ltd is a community-based organisation and the designated regional body for natural resource management in South West Queensland. It is one of fifty-six regional bodies throughout Australia and one of fourteen in Queensland.

South West NRM Ltd works with the community, Landcare groups, Traditional Owners, local government and industry groups to achieve sustainable natural resource management, and fosters landcare and catchment management ethics.

As a community-based company, South West NRM Ltd's vision is reflective of our community's values and priorities for natural resource management in the region:

“The community working together to build a healthy, sustainable, attractive, and profitable South West Queensland, through the effective management of our natural resources.”

The roles of the company are to:

- Develop, coordinate and facilitate implementation of the Regional NRM Plan;
- Provide support to natural resource management groups within the South West NRM Ltd region;
- Have input into policy development at a local, regional and state level; and
- Foster landcare and catchment management ethics.

The company is responsible for regional delivery of federal and state Natural Resource Management investment program funds in the Bulloo, Nebine-Mungallala-Wallam, Paroo and Warrego catchments.

The business of South West NRM Ltd is directed by the Regional Natural Resource Management Plan, a community-made plan that will deliver strategic programs and actions to tackle our regional natural resource issues.

The main office of South West NRM Ltd is located in the rural town of Charleville. For more information, phone 07 4656 8500 or email office@swnrm.org.au [5]
