

Bite back at wild dog costs!

Free AgForce predator control day

Costing the industry $67 million annually, wild dog control is a serious issue for Queensland sheep and cattle producers. AgForce and Australian Wool Innovation will be bringing you the latest in predator control techniques and eradication strategies this March.

Where: Goomburra Hall, Goomburra

When: Friday 30 March, 10am-3pm

Lunch provided

Speakers and topics include

- Wild Dog Coordinator, Biosecurity Queensland, John Cuskelly presenting the myths on 1080 and the latest technologies available for the control of wild dogs
- Trapping demonstration by professional trapper and wild dog caller, Clynton Spencer
- Sheep producer and guardian dog breeder Karen Huskisson
- Overview of strategic predator control techniques and programs by AgForce Projects pest animal coordinator Damien Ferguson

RSVP by 23 March 2012 to AgForce Sheep & Wool policy director Rachael Pratt on 3236 3100 or prattr@agforceqld.org.au

Field days are delivered free to all landholders by AgForce in partnership with Australian Wool Innovation.